ABSTRACT

This directory is a project of the Carolina Population Center, Technical Information Service, in conjunction with the United States Agency for International Development. Information for this compilation, the first in a series of publications, was obtained from a survey of international population/family planning libraries and information resources. Content of the questionnaire covered: general information, publications of the organization, library - general information, library publications, library - areas of specialization, library collection, library extension services, and information service. From these questionnaires, a paragraph description for each responding organization is compiled. Organizations in 79 countries are reported within the following geographical areas: Africa, North Africa, Caribbean America, Central America, North America, South America, Far East Asia, Middle East Asia, South Asia, South East Asia, Europe, and Oceania. Five indices give: (1) names of organizations listed alphabetically by English name, non-English name, and abbreviation, (2) subject interests of organizations, (3) geographical interests of organizations, (4) library publications, and (5) special collections of libraries. INTRODUCTION

The International Directory of Population Information and Library Resources is a project of the Carolina Population Center, Technical Information Service, in conjunction with the United States Agency for International Development.

The Directory is to be published as a series which will include this first edition, a supplement to this edition (January 1973), and a second and expanded edition (January 1974). In addition there will be assorted complementary publications giving detailed listings of related bibliographical information collected in conjunction with descriptive information. We realize that it is virtually impossible to provide complete and accurate coverage of such a broad range of library and information activities through one mail survey. We hope publication of the first edition will provide the basis for compilation of a more complete and revised second edition.

We also hope through publication of the first edition to bring our efforts to the attention of new organizations and those from whom we received little or no response this time. An entirely new questionnaire will be developed for the next survey. The new form will incorporate changes which reflect what we have learned and should eliminate many problems encountered this time. (A copy of the questionnaire used for this edition may be found on page 315. Suggestions for alteration of style or content will be welcomed.)

The diversity of the information collected for this publication made organization and standardization extremely difficult, and in some cases almost impossible. The format of this edition represents a compromise among many alternatives, and is meant to provide for maximum clarity and ease of use.

The length of the paragraph description of an organization or a library is not intended to reflect its size or activities, but rather indicates the amount of information provided to us. The Supplement and next edition can include revised and expanded entries for those organizations wishing to have more complete coverage of their activities and resources.

INTRODUCTION

Special Acknowledgement

We are very grateful to the National Institute of Family Planning in New Delhi for providing information for many of the entries in the Indian section. The Information and Audio-Visual Division of the National Institute of Family Planning has recently published a Directory of Family Planning and Population Libraries in India, compiled and edited by Brajesh Bhatia and M. M. L. Goyal, which includes additional information to that given in the Directory.

Explanation of Methodology and Organization

1. MAILING

Preliminary questionnaires, designed to verify addresses and to elicit basic information on an organization's relevance to population/family planning, were sent to over 1000 organizations in almost every country of the world. Approximately 500 responses were received, and each of these was sent a second and more detailed questionnaire, to which about 240 responses were received.

2. OMISSIONS AND REJECTIONS

The possibility exists that we have inadvertently overlooked organizations which may be eligible for inclusion in the Directory. Other possibilities may have been lost due to lack of returns, despite many repeat mailings. In addition, we did not try to give exhaustive coverage to several catagories--university departments, statistical organizations, e.g., on which information is readily available elsewhere. It is also possible that we have rejected some entries unjustly, although at all times we have tried to include even those organizations whose involvement in the population field is marginal.

3. GEOGRAPHICAL DIVISIONS

Geographical format is entirely utilitarian and implies no political judgements. To expedite the use of this Directory, countries have been grouped in convenient areas, including Africa; Africa, North; America, Caribbean; America, Central; America, North; America, South; Asia, Far East; Asia, Middle East; Asia, South; Asia, South East; Europe; and Oceania. The Table of Contents provides an alphabetical list of the countries falling within each of these regions. Within countries, entries are arranged alphabetically by city; in the United States, an intermediate division by state has been made.

4. PARAGRAPH ENTRIES

The paragraph entries in Section I are based upon information collected in the detailed Questionnaire No. 2. Therefore, only those organizations which completed and returned this form are described in paragraph entries. In some few cases, the returned Questionnaire No. 2 revealed little or no connection with the population field, and those organizations were therefore omitted.

5. ADDRESS ENTRIES

Organizations which responded to the first but not the second questionnaire are listed as addresses only, since Questionnaire No. 1 did not elicit detailed information. We hope that, where appropriate, organizations having only address listings will provide us with more complete information for the Supplement and final edition.

6. FORMAT OF ENTRIES

The format of our paragraph and address entries may need a brief explanation:

a. In the heading, the name of the larger or inclusive organization has been printed first.

b. In the listing of publications, we have been forced to be selective. A subsequent bibliography will give a more complete list of information we have collected on non-periodical publications.

c. "Office" library collections are not mentioned unless they are unusually large or there is an indication that they can be used by outsiders.

d. Library publications (acquisitions lists, serials lists, bibliographies, etc.) have been listed only when they are available to libraries or researchers outside the organization.

e. No titles of personnel, either address titles (Mr., Mrs., etc.) or professional titles (Dr., D.P.H., etc.), are given, because of the certainty of error, especially in unfamiliar languages.

f. The surname of each individual listed is printed in capital letters.

g. We have consistently listed personnel in this order: director, librarian, information service officer--and our order therefore does not imply a hierarchy.

h. The word in capital letters opposite the last line of the address is the cable address of the organization. The city and country should be added when this form of address is needed.

i. Categories of activities and subject interests were suggested by our questionnaire in the interests of uniformity. At the same time we encouraged respondents to elaborate upon these categories, or to discard them entirely, if irrelevant. When respondents gave a description in their own words, we have adopted it, but our given categories may have led to some distortion for those organizations that did not elaborate.

j. The question of "affiliation" is a complex one, and our listings may be incomplete.

k. All publication prices listed in this Directory are no longer accurate as a result of the recent devaluation of the U. S. dollar. These prices should, however, provide an indication of relative costs.

7. SUPPLEMENTARY BIBLIOGRAPHICAL PUBLICATION

We intend to publish a supplementary bibliography of ephemeral literature which will be available late in 1972.

8. INDICES

Indices have been prepared for selected categories of information and include page numbers for reference to the appropriate paragraph entries. See the Table of Contents for a list of these indices.

The Institute of Population and Manpower Studies, formerly the Demographic Research and Training Unit, of the University of Ife was established in 1968 in affiliation with the Population Council and the Government of the Western State of Nigeria. (See entry for the Population Council, New York.) The Institute is involved in service/fieldwork, training, research, teaching, and mass communication/education in the field of demography. The Institute's approach to demography is interdisciplinary, with the aim of using its study to help solve problems in the area of public health and economic and social development.

The Institute has had two articles published in Population Studies: "The Spread of Anti-Natal Knowledge and Practice in Nigeria," March 1970; and "An Experiment with Census-Type Age Enumeration in Nigeria," July 1971. Both of these articles were written by J. C. Caldwell and Adenola A. Igun and are in English. A list of the reports of symposia and seminars is available from the Institute upon request. The Institute hopes to begin publication of a Nigerian Journal of Population Studies in the next year.

The Institute has an extensive office collection of demographic materials, including publications of the Population Council, the U. S. National Center for Health Statistics, and the United Nations.

The Office of Studies and Planning, founded in 1962, concerns itself with the economic and social development of Togo. It has published a number of reports, including: Rapports d'exécution du premier plan quinquennal, 1966-1970, Vol. I: 1966-1968 (1968); Vol. II: au 30 Juin 1969 (1969); Plan de developpement économique et social, 1971-1975 (1971); and Carnet de l'investisseur au Togo (1971).

The Library of the Office of Studies and Planning is the Economic Documentation Center, founded in 1970 and maintained by 1 full-time librarian. Only a small portion of this library deals directly with population; the collection, written first in French and second in English, is largely composed of materials on economic and social development and focusses on Togo. It consists of 1000 books, 400 government documents, and 10 census reports, with an acquisition rate of approximately 30 books per year. In addition, the Economic Documentation Center receives 2 journals and 13 newspapers. Although the Center does not regularly provide bibliographic and reference services, it will answer requests for information from libraries outside Togo and has facilities for providing copies of materials in its collection.

The Social Action Studies Center was established in 1965 and is involved in training, research, and mass communication/education in the field of economic and social development. The Center has a special interest in the Zaïre Republic and in sub-Saharan Africa.

The Center publishes the journal Zaïre-Afrique (French), which appears 10 times a year and costs $5.00 surface/$11.00 air mail. This journal focusses on the economic, social, and cultural life of the Zaïre and includes articles on population, fertility, and urbanization. The Center also publishes reports on development topics; a list of such publications is available from CEPAS.

The Library of the Social Action Studies Center was established in 1965 and is staffed by 1 full-time and 1 part-time employee. Only a small portion of this library deals directly with population--this portion including population statistics of the Zaïre. The Library, which contains 9000 books, acquires about 300 books and 50 reprints a year, and subscribes to 109 journals and newsletters and 16 newspapers. The first language of the collection is French, the second English. The Library contains the yearly reports of the Colonial Minister to the Belgian Legislature, 1916-58. The Library will answer some requests for information from libraries outside the Zaïre.

The Institute of Statistical Studies and Research was established at Cairo University in 1948 and is engaged in service/fieldwork, training, research and teaching in the fields of statistics, demography, and interdisciplinary population studies. Translating facilities are available.

The Institute publishes the bi-annual Egyptian Population and Family Planning: An International Journal (Arabic, French, and English), at a cost of $7.00 per year. The Journal is devoted to mathematical and applied research in the fields of population and family planning. Review and theoretical articles, results of symposia and conferences, and comprehensive studies are included. The Institute also publishes the ISSR Newsletter (Arabic and English), which appears monthly at no charge and gives news of the staff, trainees, research works, etc., of the ISSR. In addition, the Institute publishes results of symposia and large scale studies, abstracts of theses, and other documents.

The ISSR Library was also established in 1948 and employs 5 full-time and 2 part-time workers. Acquisitions and serials lists are compiled quarterly and bibliographies yearly; these publications are available to other libraries. The collection of the ISSR Library is described as statistical materials, and is composed of approximately 5200 books, 100 government documents, 80 census reports, and some reprints. The Library subscribes to 65 journals and newsletters, and acquires about 350 books per year. The first languages of the collection are English and French, the second Arabic. The Library has a special collection of Egyptian statistical materials, including vital statistics of Egypt and the Egyptian Census 1882-1966. The ISSR Library provides bibliographic and reference services to other libraries, and has facilities for providing copies of materials in its collection.

The Institute of Statistical Studies and Research is in the process of establishing an Information Office, which currently

The NICHD's Center for Population Research was established in 1968 as a part of the U. S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, to support population research and research training through a large program of grants and contracts. Areas of concern to the Center include reproductive biology, contraceptive development, and the behavioral and social science aspects of population and contraception.

The Center publishes two annual reports: Population Research (English), which provides a listing of all research in population in the United States carried out by Federal agencies and public and private organizations; and The Federal Program in Population Research: Inventory of Population Research Supported by Federal Agencies (English). It also publishes a monograph series entitled CPR Population Research Reports (English). Single copies of publications are available at no charge from the Center.

The Center uses the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development Library, located in Building 31, National Institutes of Health, which was established in 1964 and has a staff of 3 full-time employees. The Library publishes an annual serials list, which is available to other libraries. The collection, described as general population and bio-medical materials, consists of 6000 books and 150 microform documents. The Library acquires about 1000 books each year, and subscribes to 600 journals and newsletters and 5 newspapers. The Library will answer requests for information from libraries outside the United States, and has facilities for providing copies of materials in its collection.

Frank N. BECKLES, Director, NCFPS
Barry KARLIN, Acting Chief, Office of Information and Education, NCFPS

The National Center for Family Planning Services was established in 1969 by an Act of Congress to plan, develop and contribute to the support of comprehensive voluntary family planning services in the United States. As a part of the Health Services and Mental Health Administration within the U. S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, the National Center strives to insure that quality medical, educational and social services required to permit control of one's own fertility shall be available to all persons desiring such services. The National Center actively supports both the delivery of these services and other vital activities including services delivery research, training of field workers, research and development in family planning education and communication, the development and employment of evaluative and management techniques, etc.

In addition to documents for staff and Congressional use, the National Center has prepared descriptive brochures and guidelines about its program. The National Center maintains a collection of materials for its central and regional offices.

The Center's Office of Information and Education was established in 1970 to make information about voluntary family planning available to all persons in the United States who wish it. To fulfill this function, it distributes materials prepared by its own staff as well as those prepared by other organizations.

U. S. DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH, EDUCATION, AND WELFARE HEALTH SERVICES AND MENTAL HEALTH ADMINISTRATION NATIONAL CENTER FOR HEALTH STATISTICS

5600 Fishers Lane
Rockville, Maryland 20852 USA

Theodore D. WOOLSEY, Director, NCHS
Arthur CARROL, Librarian, HSMHA
Alice E. HAYWOOD, Director, Office of Information, NCHS

The National Center for Health Statistics was established in 1960 as an agency in the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare of the United States Government. The Center collects statistics on the health of the U. S. population, and disseminates this information as widely as possible. NCHS statistics include those on morbidity, mortality, availability and use of health services, birth rates, and marriage and divorce. A uniform family planning clinic reporting system is planned, which will provide data on numbers of patients, socio-economic characteristics and birth control methods prescribed. Also, a new family growth survey by NCHS will detail current, planned, and desired future family size in the United States.

The NCHS publishes a number of report series in English. These reports include the Vital and Health Statistics Series, which are 12 separate series, each covering a particular program or type of report; the Monthly Vital Statistics Reports, monthly issues and an annual summary covering the latest data on mortality, natality, marriage and divorce; Vital Statistics of the United States, which is issued annually as the final compilation of the year's vital statistics; and Health Resource Statistics, which is issued annually and covers manpower and facilities data. The NCHS also publishes two newsletters: Registrar and Statistician, which appears monthly, is distributed to health personnel, and describes new developments and research in the field of vital and health statistics collection and dissemination; and Nosology Guidelines, which appears bi-monthly and is distributed to those involved in nosology coding. In addition, the NCHS publishes a number of occasional reports including instruction manuals, training brochures, reports of the National Committee on Vital and Health Statistics, and activity reports. Information on all of these publications, most of which are available at no cost, may be obtained by writing the Office of Information, National Center for Health Statistics.

The National Center uses the Library of the Health Services and Mental Health Administration. This Library was established in 1970, and has a staff of 15 full-time employees. The Library publishes a semi-monthly acquisitions list, an annual serials list, and about 50 bibliographies each year. All of these publications are available to other libraries. Population-related materials make up only a small portion of the Library's collection; these materials include public health and bio-medical information. The collection contains 15,000 books, 1000 reprints, 5000 government documents, 1000 census reports, and 100 microform documents. It acquires 2000 books and 1000 reprints each year, and subscribes to 500 journals and 10 newspapers. The collection is in English, and contains a special collection of U. S. Public Health Service Numbered Series, the HSMHA Numbered Series, and internal HSMHA reports. This Library will provide bibliographic and reference services to other libraries, organizations, and researchers, and will answer requests for information from libraries outside the United States. It has facilities for providing copies of materials in its collection.

The Office of Information of the National Center for Health Statistics distributes materials prepared by the Center, including published reports, provides unpublished tabulations, releases data tapes (only aggregate statistical data), and makes referrals to other health information sources.

The Inventory of Published Research in Marriage and Family Behavior was established in 1955 as a part of the Minnesota Family Studies Center of the University of Minnesota. The Inventory seeks to index published research literature on the family in whatever source and whatever language it appears. References are arranged by computer-produced key-word-in-context indices and by one or more topical categories.

The Inventory has published the International Bibliography of Research in Marriage and the Family, 1900-1964 (English), 1967, by Drs. Joan Aldous and Reuben Hill. This publication is available from the University of Minnesota Press at a cost of $17.50. The Inventory has also published Family Measurements Abstract (English), 1969, by Murray Straus, available at a cost of $13.50 from the University of Minnesota Press. The Inventory staff is abstracting selected portions of the literature of marriage and family behavior and now has a collection of several hundred abstracts of publications in English, German, French, Spanish, Russian, Japanese and other languages.

Inventory staff will provide bibliographies on specific topics to interested researchers, together with relevant abstracts upon request. Individuals doing grant-supported research are charged for these services.

NATIONAL COUNCIL ON FAMILY RELATIONS

special geographical interest in the United States, Europe, Asia and Africa.

The Office of Population Research publishes a bibliographic journal, Population Index (English), for the Population Association of America. Population Index covers current literature in the population field, and includes brief articles on topics of current interest, and summary tables of important population measures for most of the countries of the world for which statistics are available. The Index contains an annotated bibliography classified under 86 subject headings and sub-headings, with approximately 2500 entries made annually. Population Index costs $15.00 per year; it appears quarterly, with an annual cumulative index. Other publications by researchers in the Office of Population Research include journal articles and monographs giving the results of important research projects.

The Library of the Office of Population Research was established in 1936 and incorporated into the Princeton University Library System in 1959. It is maintained by 1 full-time and 1 part-time employee. Its collection centers on demography, statistics, development, and family planning, and consists of 4500 books, 18,500 reprints and unpublished papers, 1500 government documents, 2000 volumes of census reports, 100 reels of microfilm, and 50 maps. The Library acquires about 300 books and 2500 reprints and unpublished papers a year, and subscribes to 400 journals and 1 newspaper. The Library attempts to acquire, to the extent possible, all census material (current and retrospective) and vital statistics reports from around the world. It has a good, if not complete, collection of census materials from India, Japan, and Taiwan. The Library provides bibliographic and reference services principally to the students, researchers, and staff of the Office of Population Research, but will also attempt to cooperate with other population libraries.

Plans are being made to compose future issues of Population Index from computer console printout, with an accompanying storage of entries available for reference.

The Population Office uses the facilities of the Ford Foundation Library, which compiles bi-weekly acquisitions lists and semi-annual serials lists. These publications are available to other libraries, both in the United States and in other countries. Information services, consisting of reprints of articles on family planning program administration, population policy, social survey research, and other topics, with descriptive cover memoranda, are provided by the Population Office to the Foundation's overseas population advisors.

The Church World Service's Planned Parenthood Program was established in 1964 and is now in a cooperative working relationship with Planned Parenthood/World Population. It serves religious institutions, including 1200 Protestant hospitals in 81 countries outside of Europe and North America. The activities of the Program include material and technical assistance, service/fieldwork, training, and mass communication/education in the field of family planning, including both clinical and motivational activities. Translating facilities are available.

The Program publishes the bi-monthly CWS/PPP Newsletter (English) which gives informal coverage of the Program's activities and is available free of charge. It also prepares program summaries, field visit reports, and special projects.

The Katharine Dexter McCormick Library of Planned Parenthood/World Population was established in 1964 and has a staff of 2 full-time and 2 part-time employees. The Library publishes a monthly acquisitions list and yearly bibliographies, which are available to other libraries. The Library has also published the Family Planning Library Manual (English), which offers guidelines for starting a family planning and population library or information center. Other publications include a Family Planning Classification Scheme, a Guide to Information Sources, and a Directory of Population Research Centers in the U. S.

The Library describes its collection as family planning and general population materials, in English. The collection contains 2000 books, and 10,000 reprints. The Library acquires approximately 400 books and 500 reprints each year, and subscribes to 150 journals and newsletters. It contains complete Proceedings for the conferences of the International Planned Parenthood Federation, and the American Association of Planned Parenthood Physicians, and has complete sets of Margaret Sanger's books, and of Birth Control Review, 1917-1940. The Library will provide bibliographic and reference services to other libraries, organizations and researchers, and will answer, where possible, requests for information from libraries outside the United States. The Library has facilities for providing copies of material in its collection.

The Information and Education Service of PP/WP distributes pamphlets and other PP/WP publications, and gives advice on audio-visual presentations to PP/WP affiliates and others.

The Population Council is one of the largest autonomous organizations in the United States concerned with population. Established in 1952, it has been concerned with family planning, demographic, and bio-medical research and training. The Council attempts to clarify policy issues, promote public awareness of population matters, and serve as a clearinghouse of information. It considers Asia, Africa, and Latin America to be its primary geographical areas of focus. Facilities are available for translating materials into other languages.

Two journals are regularly published by the Population Council: (1) Studies in Family Planning (English), containing articles on a wide range of topics related to population and family planning, is published monthly; (2) Current Publications in Population/Family Planning (English), a four-page abstract of titles of particular interest to administrators and scholars in the field, is published bi-monthly. Both are distributed without charge.

Other publications are numerous. The Population Chronicle (English) is a quarterly newsletter that provides an up-to-date account of population matters for the interested non-specialist; its distribution is limited primarily to government officials in developing countries. The Population Council also publishes two series of occasional papers: the first, Reports on Population/Family Planning (English), presents in depth the current experience, information and evidence on central topics related to population and family planning; the second, Country Profiles (English), sets forth the social and demographic aspects of countries, based on an internationally comparable outline. These publications are available free of charge.

In addition, the Council publishes, and sponsors with commercial publishers, books on selected topics relating to population and family planning. The following books will be sent free of charge to libraries of universities and research institutions in Asia, Africa, and Latin America where study in demography is under way or planned. Each request should be sent to the Council's Information Office, with a letter describing the institution's training and research programs. Orders from individuals or from institutions in areas other than those mentioned above should be directed to Key Books Service, Inc., 425 Asylum Street, Bridgeport, Connecticut 06610 USA. In these cases, Key Books will bill the recipient in the amounts noted below:

Bean, Lee L., Richmond K. Anderson, and Howard J. Tatum, A Study of Population and Family Planning: Manpower and Training, 1971. 136 pp. ISBN 0-87834-003-3. $3.95.

The Population Council Library was founded in 1960 and is currently staffed by 1 part-time and 2 full-time employees. The Library publishes monthly acquisitions lists which are available to other libraries. Its collection, consisting of 4500 books, 36,000 reprints, 800 government documents, and 450 census reports, centers primarily on demographic, family planning, and general population concerns throughout the world. English is the first language of the collection, Spanish the second. The Library acquisition rate is approximately 400 books and 2000 reprints each year, and it receives 180 journals and newsletters. Of special interest is the collection of Working Papers of the Population Division of the United Nations. The Library will provide bibliographic and reference services to other libraries, organizations, and individual researchers, and will answer requests for information from libraries outside the United States.

The Population Council also has a Biomedical Library, located at Tower Building, Rockefeller University, York Avenue at 66th Street, New York, New York 10021. The Biomedical Library is staffed by 1 full-time worker; it publishes bibliographies upon request. The collection has a bio-medical focus, but also contains family planning and statistical materials. It consists of 3000 books and 25,000 reprints, and is written first in English, second in German. The Biomedical Library subscribes to about 80 journals and newsletters and acquires about 450 books and 3000 reprints each year. This library is also prepared to provide bibliographic and reference services to individual researchers as well as to libraries outside the United States. Facilities are available for providing copies of materials in the Biomedical Library's collection.

The purpose of the Information Office of the Population Council is to bring new information to the attention of population policy makers. It distributes materials prepared by the Population Council and in addition sends reprints of journal articles listed in Current Publications to persons in Asia, Africa, and Latin America upon request. The Information Office is staffed by 11 persons.

The Sex Information and Education Council of the U. S. was established in 1964 as a voluntary health organization engaged in research about sex education, mass communication, and the dissemination of information on human sexuality.

SIECUS publishes the bi-monthly SIECUS Newsletter (English) at a cost of $7.00 per year. Each issue of the newsletter provides: reviews of literature, teaching aids, and audio-visual materials; news about sex education and human sexuality throughout the world; and an article on a relevant theme. SIECUS also publishes a series of Study Guides (English), including such titles as Sex Education by Lester Kirkendall, Sex, Science and Values by Harold Christensen, and The Sex Educator and Moral Values by Isadore Rubin. Single copies of Study Guides cost $.50; bulk orders cost less per copy.

Books and booklets on various aspects of family life and sex education are also available. Some titles are: Family Life and Sex Education: Curriculum and Instruction (English), 1968, by Esther Schultz and Sally R. Williams ($4.50), and The Rising Furor over Sex Education (English), 1969, by Luther G. Baker, Jr. ($.25). SIECUS has prepared several lists of annotated readings on human sexuality, as well as compiling an extensive collection of reprints. A complete list of these publications and reprints is available from SIECUS upon

Rafael M. SALAS, Executive Director
Ellen FERGUSON, Information Consultant

The Fund for Population Activities was established in the United Nations in 1967, to offer multilateral technical assistance in population matters to developing countries and regions of the world. The main goals of UNFPA are: (a) to promote an awareness of the social and economic consequences of population growth in developing countries; (b) to give assistance to developing countries in assessing and coping with their population problems; (c) to improve the capabilities of the relevant organizations of the United Nations system in planning and implementing population projects; (d) to provide leadership for expanded population activities within the UN system. At present, more than 400 projects are being supported by the Fund for Population Activities in 64 countries in Africa, Asia, Latin America, and the Middle East.

UNFPA has published a brochure entitled United Nations Population Fund: What it is, What it Does, How it Works, and Why it Concerns You (English), 1970, which is available free of charge from the Fund.

The recently formed UNFPA Information Program is preparing a newsletter, a technical booklet concerning the population work of the United Nations system, and an up-dated brochure on UNFPA. Technical reports from specific projects supported by the Fund are prepared occasionally, and it is anticipated that an increasing number will be generated in the future.

Philippe de SEYNES, Under Secretary General of Economic and Social Affairs
Octavio CABELLO, Acting Director, Population Division
Simone SAUTEROT, Reference Center, Population Division
Abraham AIDENOFF, Acting Director, Statistical Office
Lincoln DAY, Chief, Demographic and Social Statistics Branch, Statistical Office

The former Population Branch of the UN Bureau of Social Affairs was upgraded and reorganized in 1966 as the Population Division of the United Nations Department of Economic and Social Affairs. The Population Division's counterpart in the UN Secretariat is the Population Commission, and the Division is responsible for carrying out the program formulated by the Commission. Functions of the Population Division include preparation of demographic studies and reports, research and technical work on fertility and family planning, and provision of advisory services to governments in all fields of population. The Division has a special focus on the world's developing countries.

The Population Division publishes the quarterly Population Newsletter (English), which disseminates information on the activities of the United Nations in the population field. This publication is available at no cost. The series entitled Population Bulletin of the United Nations, published by the Population Division, varies in price and language and includes, among others: No. 1, Articles on world population growth, international migrations in the Far East, and dynamics of age structure of populations (English and French) (Sales No. 52.XIII.2), which costs $.60; No. 4, Articles on fertility in Australia and Ceylon and causes of aging of populations (English and French) (Sales No. 55.XIII.1), which costs $.40; and No. 7, Conditions and trends of fertility in the world (English, French, and Spanish) (Sales No. 64.XIII.2), which costs $2.00.

The Population Division also prepares publications on population trends and problems. Some titles are: The Determinants and Consequences of Population Trends (English, French, and Spanish) (Sales No. 53.XIII.3), which costs $5.00; The Aging of Populations and its Economic and Social Implications (English and French) (Sales No. 56.XIII.6), which costs $1.75; Population Growth and Manpower in the Sudan (English, French, and Spanish) (Sales No. 64.XIII.5), which costs $2.00; and Growth of the World's Urban and Rural Population, 1920-2000 (English, French, Spanish, and Russian) (Sales No. E.69. XIII.3), which costs $2.00.

In addition, the Population Division has published future population estimates, including World Population Prospects As Assessed in 1963 (English, French, and Spanish) (Sales No. 66.XIII.2), which costs $2.00 and gives population projections to 2000 for world regions and to 1980 for each country, and miscellaneous demographic publications, including: Multilingual Demographic Dictionary (English, French, Spanish, and Russian) (Sales No. 58.XIII.4), which costs $1.00; Proceedings of the World Population Conferences in Rome (1954) and Belgrade (1965); and Reports of UN Seminars on Population. The Population Division issues occasional internal working papers for information and consultation purposes; these papers are available to persons within the UN family interested in population problems and to international experts on demography.

The Reference Center of the Population Division was established in 1966 and employs 1 full-time worker. The Center's collection, which has a special focus on developing nations, contains materials on demography, family planning, and general population topics. It contains 320 books, 2000 reprints, and 360 government documents. The Center acquires 240 reprints a year, and subscribes to 57 journals and newsletters. The first language of the collection is English, the second Spanish. The Center has a special collection of the publications of the Centro Latinoamericano de Demografia (CELADE) of Santiago, Chile. The Center is sometimes able to answer requests for information from libraries outside the United Nations.

The UN Statistical Office, another division of the Department of Economic and Social Affairs, has the primary responsibility for coordinating statistical activities within the UN system. Specifically, the UN Statistical Office is responsible for the publication of statistics and for maintenance of close contact and coordination with national governments on the submission of statistical data, analysis and publication. The Statistical Office publishes annually the Demographic Yearbook (English and French), one of a set of UN periodic publications designed to supply basic statistical data for demographers, economists, sociologists, and public health workers. Each Yearbook features a special topic, such as marriage and divorce statistics, population trends, or natality statistics.

The Statistical Office also publishes several series of statistical papers, including such titles as: Series A, Population and Vital

UNITED NATIONS

The Center for the Advancement of Population Studies in Medicine was established in 1970 as a national student organization involved in increasing the responsibility of the medical profession in the areas of population growth and family planning. The Center's public health, bio-medical, and demographic concerns focus on the United States.

The Center publishes a semi-monthly journal, M.A.L.T.H.U.S. (English), which contains articles of relevance to health professionals relating to health and family planning. It also publishes a series of documents, Current Topics in Family Planning (English), which highlight different topics of the field, with emphasis on local projects which health professionals might undertake.

The Center's Library was also established in 1970 and is staffed by 1 full-time employee. It publishes monthly acquisitions lists and bibliographies which are available to other libraries. The collection

The Association of Population/Family Planning Libraries and Information Centers, Inc., was formally incorporated in 1972 as an association representing over 50 organizations, libraries, and individuals concerned with identifying, collecting, and disseminating information relevant to population and family planning. The Association grew out of the series of National Conferences on Population Library and Information Services, the first of which was held in 1968. Proceedings of these conferences are available from the Carolina Population Center.

Present organizational goals of APLIC are: (1) to establish personal contact among the various persons constituting the "invisible network" of the population information community; (2) to encourage and expedite the exchange of information; and (3) to institute a program of continuing education in order to provide a view of the

The Carolina Population Center was established in 1966 at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. It is involved in service/fieldwork, training, research, teaching, and mass communication/education in the field of interdisciplinary population studies, with emphasis on family planning and demographic and bio-medical research. Geographical focus is given to developing nations of the world, with a special focus on Africa, India, Thailand, Chile, Iran, and the Arab Republic of Egypt.

The Carolina Population Center has published a number of reports, including Family Planning in Tewkesbury County: A Casebook in Community Health (English), 1970, by Charles B. Arnold, Ann Sauls, and Sylvain Fribourg, at a cost of $10.00; Approaches to the Human Fertility Problem: A Report for the United Nations Advisory Committee on the Application of Science and Technology to Development (English), 1968, edited by Moye W. Freymann, at a cost of $1.50; and Chapel Hill: A Demographic Profile of a University Town, 1971, by Thomas E. Steahr. It also publishes an extensive reprint series which includes articles by Steven Polgar, J. Richard Udry, J. J. Spengler, Ethel M. Nash, and others.

In addition, the Center publishes a monograph series, among which are Culture and Population: A Collection of Current Studies (English), edited by Steven Polgar; Declining Population Growth Revisited (English), 1971, by J. J. Spengler; and Potential Socioeconomic Consequences of Planned Fertility Reduction: North Carolina--A Case Study (English), 1971, by A. S. David and R. S. S. Sarma. Monographs are available at a cost of $1.50 each. A seminar held at the University of North Carolina in 1966 resulted in The 99th Hour: The Population Crisis in the United States, 1967, edited by Daniel O. Price and available from the University of North Carolina Press. A newsletter, the CPC News (English), is published occasionally at no charge. Also available is the Casebook for the Intrauterine Contraceptive Device by Samuel M. Wishik of the International Institute for the Study of Human Reproduction at Columbia University and Jaroslav F. Hulka of the Carolina Population Center. A complete list of CPC publications may be obtained from the CPC Publications Office, 214 West Cameron Avenue, Chapel Hill, North Carolina 27514.

The Center's Library was established in 1967, and has a staff of 5 full-time and 5 part-time employees. It publishes three monthly acquisitions lists: one for books, one for reprints and papers, and one for Area Files Documents. The Library also publishes the Monthly Index to Periodical Literature in Population/Family Planning ("Scanning Sheet"), which covers more than 200 journals. A serials list is published annually, and bibliographies are done on request. All Library publications are available to other libraries and to individuals at no charge.

The Library describes its collection as general population materials, with an emphasis on population dynamics, family planning, and demography; the collection focusses on Asia, Latin America, the Middle East, Africa, and the southeastern United States. It contains 4500 books, 4500 reprints, 700 government documents, scattered census reports including a complete Indian census on microfiche from 1872 through 1951, and much of the 1961 Indian census. The Library acquires 700 books and 2400 reprints per year, and subscribes to 220 journals and newsletters and 1 newspaper. A special collection of about 2000 documents, the "Area Files," includes unpublished reports and papers filed alphabetically by region/country. (A collection of North Carolina population materials is housed separately.) The Library provides bibliographic and reference services to researchers and libraries in the United States and abroad. Library administration at the CPC is encompassed by the Technical Information Service (TIS), which also covers special projects and research/experimentation on various information handling techniques. An example is the special project currently underway to convert the Library's card catalogue to machine-readable form, and to provide thesaurus-based, coordinate subject retrieval. This is planned as the first phase of a pilot, automated document control system for storage and retrieval of certain population/family planning information. Both the thesaurus and the document control system are being designed with international use in mind.

The publishing program of the Technical Information Service includes this Directory, a Bibliography Series, Proceedings of the first four annual conferences of the Association of Population/Family Planning Libraries and Information Centers (see entry for APLIC, Chapel Hill), and a few reports and other documents. In the spring of 1972, the TIS will begin an expanded program of bibliographic publication, and will begin publishing a newsletter/report series. The newsletter/report series will attempt to report on the activities of population libraries around the world, provide a means of information relay between them, and serve as the ad hoc voice of APLIC. The newsletter and all published bibliographies will be available free upon request.

An International Conference on Population Library and Information Resources will be held by the TIS in the spring of 1973. This conference will bring together population/family planning librarians, information service officers, and others with an interest in this field from all over the world. An effort will be made to draft recommendations for presentation to the 1974 World Population Conference. The International Library Conference is scheduled to last approximately one week, and will feature workshops, training sessions, and speakers.

The Educational Materials Unit of the CPC prepares and distributes a variety of instructional materials designed for use in population/family planning mass communication programs. This Unit, located at 214 Cameron Avenue, Chapel Hill, North Carolina 27514, publishes a variety of booklets, including The Right Way to Birth Control, and You and the Pill, as well as flipbooks and mail pieces. The Unit writes and distributes a weekly question and answer newspaper column which answers readers' questions relating to birth control, sterilization, abortion, etc. The Unit also produces films and filmstrips, including the film Under One Roof, which describes the advantages of family size limitation.

The Population Studies Program was established in 1964 as a part of Duke University. It is engaged in training and research in the fields of demography and economic and social development. The Program focusses on Latin America and the southern United States. A miscellaneous research report series is planned.

The Population Studies Program Library, located in Room 142 of the Sociology-Psychology Building, was also established in 1964, and has a staff of 1 full-time employee. Monthly acquisitions lists are available to other libraries. The collection, consisting of 500 books, 25 reprints, 20 government documents, and 30 census reports, is described as demographic and development materials. The collection focusses on Latin America and the southern United States. The Library acquires 100 books and 30 reprints each year, and subscribes to 30 journals and newsletters. The first language of the collection is English, the second French. The Library has a special collection of vital statistics on Colombia, South America. The Library will answer requests for information from libraries outside the United States, and has facilities for providing copies of materials in its collection.

ERIC INFORMATION ANALYSIS CENTER FOR SCIENCE, MATHEMATICS AND ENVIRONMENTAL EDUCATION

1460 West Lane Avenue
Columbus, Ohio 43221 USA

Robert E. HOWE, Director

The ERIC Information Analysis Center for Science, Mathematics and Environmental Education was established in 1965 in affiliation with Ohio State University. It is engaged in research, education and computer-based information analysis in the fields of science, mathematics and environmental education. Major analysis activities are related to work in the United States.

The Analysis Center publishes the SMEAC Newsletter: Environmental Education (English), a publication concerned with all aspects of environmental education, including population/family planning. The newsletter appears eight times a year and is available without charge. The Analysis Center also publishes other newsletters, special reports, research reviews, and bibliographies, though none to this date concern population.

The Center employs 6 full-time and 15 part-time workers. It compiles monthly acquisitions lists, quarterly serials lists, and bibliographies as needed. These can be supplied to other libraries on a limited basis. The collection, which consists of about 60,000 documents--15,000 printed, 45,000 microfiche--is written primarily in English and is composed of materials relating to science, mathematics, and environmental education. The Center receives 85 journals and

The Pan American Health Organization is a regional office of the World Health Organization, and thus falls under the auspices of the United Nations. The Department of Health and Population Dynamics was established in March, 1970, and is mainly concerned with family planning, maternal and child health, and population dynamics activities. The Department's main role is to provide technical and financial assistance to programs requested by the member nations of the Pan American Health Organization in the following fields of interest: maternal and child health, family planning, and interdisciplinary population studies. PAHO itself is involved in service/fieldwork, training, research, teaching, and mass communication/education, in all of which assistance is offered to PAHO's 27 member nations. The Department of Health and Population Dynamics has facilities for translating materials into other languages.

The Department of Health and Population Dynamics has provided general information on family planning, maternal and child health, and other related fields since these activities were initiated in the Pan American Health Organization. Due to the increase in the demand for such information, a Population Information Center was recently created to render these services systematically. The two major functions of the Information Unit will be: (1) to distribute PAHO/WHO materials to organizations, associations, or individuals concerned with family planning, at their request; (2) to publish an up-to-date report on PAHO's assistance to population programs in Latin America. This report will describe types of activities by year, country and amount of expenditure. Strong emphasis will be given to services, education and training activities in family planning, and maternal and child health.

Lawrence KEGAN, Director
Mary Anne SENNETT, Reference Librarian

The Population Crisis Committee was established in 1966 in order to educate the public to an awareness of the over-population crisis. Its research and mass communication/education efforts in the areas of interdisciplinary population studies, demography, and family planning are aimed at controlling population growth.

The Committee publishes a bi-monthly newsletter (English), which gives brief reports on significant activities of the Committee and other developments in the fields of population and family planning. It also publishes the Victor-Bostrom Reports (English) bi-annually, a series of reports dealing with aspects of population and family planning in selected countries. Both publications are available at no charge. The Committee has also published other reports, including The Family Planning Services and Population Research Act of 1970, Zero Population Growth, and The Pill.

The Population Crisis Committee maintains a small library of about 250 books dealing with family planning and demography. It receives about 15 journals and newsletters and 5 newspapers. The

POPULATION REFERENCE BUREAU, INC. (PRB)

1755 Massachusetts Avenue, N. W.
Washington, D. C. 20036 USA

Michael F. BREWER, President
Frances B. JACOBSON, Librarian
Stephen LERNER, Information Officer

The Population Reference Bureau, Inc., established in 1929, is concerned with the impact of population growth on the world's natural resources, environment and quality of life. In addition to its publications and research activities, it supports a program of formal population education. It directs its efforts to interdisciplinary population studies, demography, and economic and social development. The Bureau's international program is currently focussed primarily on Latin America.

The Population Reference Bureau publishes the Population Bulletin (English and Spanish), a journal offering background information and interpretations of U. S. and international population problems and their social, economic and ecological consequences. Other publications include PRB Selections (reprints of significant speeches and articles) and PRB Profiles (shorter studies of selected population topics). Membership in PRB costs $8.00 a year, including subscriptions to the Bulletin, Selections and Profiles, as well as the Annual World Population Data Sheet. A special $5.00 rate is available for teachers, students and libraries.

The Bureau's International Program publishes and distributes, free of charge, the following publications in Spanish and Portuguese: PRB Bulletins, occasional monographs, World Population Data Sheet, and a monthly newsletter, Población, focussing on international problems of population and development.

The Bureau has also produced a series of ancillary social studies texts, two Spanish radio series, a film on urban problems in Spanish and English, and a series of slides and wall charts suitable as audio-visual instruction aids, and a continuing series of Spanish-language books and translations. Further information on these and other items may be obtained by writing to PRB.

The Population Reference Bureau Library was established in 1960 and is staffed by 1 part-time and 1 full-time employee. It has published a Sourcebook on Population, issues bi-monthly acquisitions lists, occasional serials lists, and prepares annotated bibliographies for "Readings in Population," a special feature in PRB Selections. All are available to other libraries. The Library collection contains general population, statistical, and demographic materials, and has a special collection devoted to Latin America. The collection, primarily in English, but also in Spanish, consists of about 3000 books, 1200 reprints, 550 U. S. Government documents, and a sizeable collection of pamphlets and news clippings. The Library subscribes to 273 English and Spanish journals and newsletters and 5 English and 3 Spanish newspapers. The acquisition rate is about 275 books and 325 reprints per year. The Library can provide bibliographic and reference services to other libraries, organizations, researchers, and laymen, both in the United States and abroad, and has facilities for providing copies of materials in its collection.

The Population Reference Bureau's Information Service, which is integrated with the PRB Library, responds to requests for bibliographic and demographic information and distributes materials prepared by the Bureau. Nominal fees are charged to reproduce materials.

was established as the Bureau of the Census Library in 1952, is a branch of the Administrative Services Division of SESA. It employs 24 full-time workers. The Library issues monthly acquisitions lists and occasional bibliographies, which are available to other libraries. The collection is statistical in nature; the population-related portion of the collection focusses on demography and family planning. The Library contains 158,000 books, reprints, government documents and census reports, as well as 500 microform documents. It subscribes to 1200 journals and newsletters and 10 newspapers. The annual acquisition rate is about 12,000 items. The collection is written mostly in English and contains a complete set of the United States Census publications from 1790 to date and many foreign censuses. The Library can provide bibliographic and reference services to other libraries, organizations, researchers and laymen, and will answer requests for information from libraries outside the United States. Facilities are available for copying materials in the Library collection.

The Bureau of the Census was established in 1902 as part of the U. S. Department of Commerce in the United States Government. It is a general purpose statistical agency which collects, tabulates and releases a wide variety of statistical data about the people and the economy of the United States. Of relevance to the population/family planning field are the decennial censuses of population, the population projections and estimates, and the current data on population characteristics.

The Bureau publishes numerous report series, among which are: P-20, Population characteristics; P-25, Population estimates and projections; and P-96, Demographic reports for foreign countries. These publications are all in English and vary in frequency of publication and cost. Further information on publications is available from the Bureau of the Census Catalog, which appears quarterly, cumulative to annual, with monthly supplements, at a cost of $3.00 per year in the U. S. and $3.75 abroad.

The International Demographic Statistics Center, established in 1968, is a part of the International Statistical Programs Division of the Bureau of the Census. It is involved in research as well as the collection of demographic data concerning the developing countries of the world. It can offer specialized services dealing with information on population and family planning in these countries. Some of these services can be obtained through an automated data storage and retrieval system.

The Bureau of Economic Analysis, which was established in 1953 as the Office of Business Economics, was given its present title on January 1, 1972. It provides economic measures of the national economy, including input-output measures, income and wealth data, balance of payments estimates, and analyses of the current business situation and outlook.

The Foreign Demographic Analysis Division, established in 1951 in the Bureau of the Census, was transferred to the Bureau of Economic Analysis in January 1972. It is concerned with research in demography, economic and social development, and statistics as these topics relate to the other countries of the world.

The Division has published several reports which are categorized in specific series: detailed population and labor force studies, population and labor force projections, and demographic/economic topics. A complete list of publications is available from the Division. A small but highly selective library of demographic, economic, and statistical materials on the USSR and the socialist countries of Eastern Europe and the Far East is available to interested scholars.

of references of interest to WHO staff. These publications are available only by special request. The Library contains 10,000 books, 5000 reprints, 2000 government documents, 300 census reports, and a few filmstrips and tapes; the small population-related portion of the collection is focussed on public health in the countries in the South-East Asia region. The collection is written in English and contains a complete set of all WHO publications. The Library acquires about 1000 books and 275 reprints per year, and subscribes to 380 journals and newsletters. Limited reference and bibliographic services are available to institutions in the Member States of the South-East Asia region.

The Public Information Unit distributes materials prepared by WHO and issues press releases on WHO's activities in the South-East Asia region. The Sales and Documents Unit distributes documents and technical publications issued by WHO Headquarters and the Regional Office. WHO technical publications are available at lower rates to purchasers within the region.

The Indonesian Planned Parenthood Association was established in 1957 as a voluntary agency with near total responsibility for all aspects of family planning programs in Indonesia, and became affiliated with the International Planned Parenthood Federation in 1966. (See entry for IPPF, London.) Many of IPPA's program responsibilities are now being taken over by the Government of Indonesia as it develops a national family planning program, but IPPA will retain responsibility for training all types of family planning workers, for public information programs, and for some types of research and evaluation.

IPPA publishes a quarterly journal, Indonesian Planned Parenthood News (English), Keluarga Berentjana (Indonesian), dealing with family planning programs in Indonesia as well as the activities of IPPA; the cost is about $1.00 per year. It has also published a number of reports including Population and Family Planning in Indonesia (English), 1968, and Family Planning and National Development (English), the proceedings of the IPPF-Regional Conference in Bandun, June, 1969.

The Library of the National Training Center of the Indonesian Planned Parenthood Association is located at Wisma Hasta Unit B2, Djalan Pintu 9, Senajan, Djakarta. This Library was established in 1969 and is staffed by 3 full-time and 2 part-time employees. The Library has published one list of holdings and two bibliographies since its founding, and these are available to other libraries. The collection is described as relating mostly to family planning, with additional general population materials; it contains 2500 books, 500 reprints, 100 government documents, 5 census reports, and a few pieces of audio-visual equipment. The collection is written first in English, second in Indonesian. The Library receives a varying number of books each year, and about 50 reprints. governments outside the region. (Afghanistan, Australia, Burma, Cambodia [Khmer Republic], Ceylon, France, India, Indonesia, Iran, Japan, Laos, Malaysia, Mongolia, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Pakistan, Philippines, Republic of Korea, Republic of Vietnam, Singapore, Taiwan, Thailand, USSR, United Kingdom, United States, Western Samoa; associate members: British Solomon Islands, Brunei, Fiji, Hong Kong, Papua, and New Guinea.)

The ECAFE Clearing House publishes a quarterly newsletter, Asian Population Programme News (English), which emphasizes the reporting of government policies and programs, research and teaching trends in the ECAFE region, and the scope of United Nations assistance for program development to other countries. The newsletter is available at no charge to governments, institutions, and organizations. The Clearing House also publishes the Asian Population Studies Series, a set of reports dealing with various aspects of family planning and demography in the ECAFE region, including Assessment of Acceptance and Effectiveness of Family Planning Methods (No. 4), 1968, and Evaluation of Family Planning Programmes (No. 5), 1971. It also occasionally publishes bibliographies or directories on selected subjects.

The Clearing House uses the ECAFE Library which was established in 1947 and is staffed by approximately 10 employees. This Library compiles a selected list of accessions relating to the ECAFE region semi-annually and compiles bibliographies occasionally. A very limited number of copies are available. The population-related portion of the ECAFE collection is described as development materials with special focus on those countries falling in the ECAFE region. The collection contains approximately 60,000 books, reprints, government documents and census reports, and about 50,000 United Nations and specialized agency documents, as well as 15 pieces of microfilm and 400 maps. The collection is written first in English, second in French. The Library acquires about 3000 books and 100 reprints each year and receives approximately 1200 journals and newsletters and 25 newspapers. The Library has complete censuses and census reports for many of the countries in the ECAFE region and a large collection of publications of international organizations, particularly the United Nations. Limited bibliographic and reference services are available to those outside the ECAFE jurisdiction.

The Population Division of ECAFE is currently conducting a Comparative Study on Various Communication Techniques for Family Planning in four countries of the ECAFE region.

The National Institute of Demographic Studies is a research organization founded in 1946 in affiliation with the Ministry of Labor, Employment and Population of the French Government. The Institute's major interest is demography.

The Institute publishes the journal Population (French, with English and Spanish summaries) at a yearly subscription cost of about $6.00 for French subscribers and about $8.00 for subscribers outside of France. The Institute also publishes occasional reports in French, of which a catalogue is available.

The Library of the National Institute of Demographic Studies was established in 1946 and currently employs 1 part-time and 5 full-time workers. Its main subject concern is demography. The collection has French as its first language and English as its second. The Library publishes acquisitions lists monthly and bibliographies at irregular intervals. An inventory of periodicals was done in 1967. These publications are available to other libraries, both in France and abroad. The Library receives 500 journals and newsletters, 8 newspapers, and acquires about 800 new books a year. Its collection of census data for various countries reflects staff interests. The Library can provide bibliographic and reference services to other libraries, organizations, students, and interested laymen, and will answer requests for information from libraries outside France, but it does not provide copies of materials in its collection.

The National Institute of Statistics and Economic Studies was established in 1946 in affiliation with the National School for the Study of Statistics and Economics. The Institute is engaged in economic and statistical studies.

The Institute publishes three journals: the monthly Economie et Statistique, which contains articles and reports on the work of INSEE and costs about $20.00 a year for subscribers outside France; the occasional Collections de l'INSEE, of which Series D includes demography and employment; and the Bulletin Mensuel de Statistique, which costs about $14.50 for foreign subscribers. These journals are in French, with resumés in other languages.

The Institute also publishes the Annuaire Statistique de la France (French), which gives, in the form of tables, maps, and graphs, information about demographic, economic, and social aspects of life in France and other countries; Tableaux de l'économie française (French), annually; and the Recensements de la population de la France (French), including the most recent censuses of 1968, 1962, and 1954. A yearly catalogue of publications of the National Institute of Statistics and Economic Studies is available upon request.

The Documentation Division of the Institute, a part of the Department of Documentation and Publications, was established in 1946, and has a staff of 6 full-time workers. The Division publishes the weekly Bulletin de la Bibliotheque (French), which gives new acquisitions and a selection of articles; the Bulletin is available to other libraries in France and abroad, at a cost of about $20.00 a year.

The Documentation Division has a collection of statistical materials focussing on France and her overseas territories. The collection contains 300,000 volumes, with French as a first language and English as a second. The collection grows by 8000 books a year. The Division provides bibliographic and reference services to other libraries, organizations, and researchers, and will answer requests for information from libraries outside France.

The Information Bureau of the Institute also provides information on current French statistics, and sells publications of the Institute.

The Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development is an inter-governmental organization, established in 1960 to promote policies designed to achieve high rates of economic growth and employment and a rising standard of living in member countries. The Development Centre of OECD was established in 1962 to carry out research in economic development and the execution of policies of economic aid, and to put the results of such research at the disposal of member countries. Member countries of OECD are: Austria, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, Finland, France, the Federal Republic of Germany, Greece, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, the United Kingdom, and the United States.

The Population Unit of OECD was established in 1968, and is primarily concerned with the relationship between population growth and development and with the extent and nature of population assistance from all sources to developing nations. The Population Unit has facilities for translating material into other languages.

Proceedings of the OECD Annual Population Conferences are published by the Population Unit, together with reports on other meetings and Expert Working Groups. Recent publications include: Population Programmes and Economic and Social Development, by T. Ruprecht and C. Wahren; International Assistance for Population Programmes, 1968, conference proceedings giving recipient and donor views, available at a cost of $3.50; The Demographic Transition in Tropical Africa, from the proceedings of an Expert Group Meeting; Family Planning Programmes in Africa (English and French), 1970, by Pierre Pradervand; and Population Control and Economic Development (English and French), 1967, by Goran Ohlin. Information on OECD publications may be obtained from the Publications Office, 2 rue André-Pascal, 75 Paris XVI.

The Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development has a general library dealing with all aspects of development, but not one specialized in the field of population/family planning.

The Reproduction Research Information Service, Ltd., established in 1962, publishes a bibliographic journal and provides an information service. Its field of interest is bio-medical research in vertebrate reproduction. It has a staff of 7 persons and a small office collection of dictionaries and basic reference books on reproductive biology.

The journal Bibliography of Reproduction (English) is published each month with a subject index every six months. The cost per year (1972) is approximately $73.00. The journal is intended for reproductive biologists, with a section on "compounds affecting fertility" and "contraception and fertility control." It was designed to expedite the development of better means of human fertility control by improving information retrieval for researchers.

Reproduction Research also publishes in-depth bibliographies on a variety of bio-medical reproductive topics, in collaboration with experts on these topics. The bibliographies appear in the Bibliography of Reproduction each month, but are also sold separately at a cost of about $3.00 each (sent airmail).

Reproduction Research provides a "literature searching service" using a Termatrex-type system, based on a store of over 100,000 reference cards in the field of reproductive biology collected since 1962. Approximately 14,000 references are added to the store each year. Searches on reproductive topics are returned to the customer in about two weeks. The minimum cost for this service is $10.00 This covers only the 30,000 most recent references. A charge of about $2.50 is made for each 10,000 additional references searched, which means that a search of all 100,000 references currently on file would cost about $27.50.

THE SIMON POPULATION TRUST

141 Newmarket Road
Cambridge CB5 8HA, England

Donn CASEY, Chairman of Trustees

The Simon Population Trust is a grant-making organization established in 1957 whose objectives are to promote understanding of the problems of world population and resources, and to encourage research, education, and other efforts to adjust population to resources. The policy of the Trust is to support projects which may yield large returns from small investments. It has made grants to such organizations as the International Planned Parenthood Federation, London; Reproduction Research Information Service, Ltd, Cambridge; and Walworth Women's Welfare Centre, London; as well as to its own Sterilization Project which ran from 1966 to 1970.

Michael STEWART, Director
R. P. S. GRANT, Chief Administrative Officer

The Ditchley Foundation was created as an educational body to organize and conduct Anglo-American and international conferences on a wide variety of topics. In January 1969 it held such a conference which resulted in the publication of a report entitled Population Growth: The Impact of Advances in Agriculture and Medicine (Ditchley Paper #17), edited by Michael Lipton. In the fall of 1972 the Foundation will hold a conference on "Population Problems and Policies in Britain and the United States."

BIRTH CONTROL CAMPAIGN

233 Tottenham Court Road
London W1P 9AE, England

Alastair SERVICE, Chairman
Dilys COSSEY, General Secretary

The Birth Control Campaign was established in 1971 to urge the British Government to include comprehensive provision of birth control in the National Health Service. The Campaign seeks to accomplish this by lobbying politicians at national and local levels and by collecting and publicizing information on the availability of birth control. The Campaign will issue a newsletter, Birth Control Campaign News (English), to keep politicians informed of developments in the birth control field. The Campaign has compiled background information on birth control and population in Great Britain.

Julia HENDERSON, Secretary-General
Catharine STUBBINGS, Librarian
Frances DENNIS, Director of Information

The International Planned Parenthood Federation was established in 1952 as a voluntary agency to assist in the development of private family planning associations in all countries, through financial support, technical assistance, and advisory services. IPPF-supported associations offer contraceptive services, recruit and train staff, and inform all sectors of the population about the practice of family planning and the urgency of reducing population growth rates. The Federation assists associations to bring about a climate of public support in each country which will lead to a sound population policy and the provision of nationwide government family planning services. There are currently IPPF-affiliates in 72 countries. Regional offices are located in Beirut, Colombo, Kuala Lumpur, London, Nairobi, New York and Tokyo, with a sub-regional office in Accra.

IPPF publishes two journals: the bi-monthly Medical Bulletin (English, French, German, and Spanish) which is sent free of charge to doctors interested in the medical aspects of contraception; and Research in Reproduction (English) which appears bi-monthly at no charge and gives research scientists information on developments in the physiology of reproduction. IPPF publishes the monthly newsletter IPP News (English, French, German, Spanish, Arabic, Portuguese, and Italian), which contains family planning information of special interest to those working in family planning programs in developing countries.

The Federation also publishes a series of IPPF Working Papers on various aspects of family planning, including such titles as: No. 1, Mobile Units; No. 4, Incentive Payments; and No. 5, The Relationship between Family Size and Maternal and Child Health. Proceedings of IPPF conferences and seminars are also published. Some titles are: Planned Parenthood--A Duty and a Human Right (English and Spanish), proceedings of the 8th IPPF International Conference, Santiago, Chile, 1967; Population 70 (English), proceedings of the IPPF Western Pacific Regional Conference, Tokyo, 1970; Social Demography and Medical Responsibility (English and French), proceedings of the 6th Conference of the Europe and Near East Region of the IPPF, Budapest, 1969; and The Role of Family Planning in African Development (English and French), proceedings of a seminar held at University College, Nairobi, 1967. A complete list of IPPF publications is available upon request.

The Library of the International Planned Parenthood Federation was established in 1964 and has a staff of 4 full-time employees. It publishes the quarterly Library Bulletin (English), a record of the book acquisitions of the Library during the preceding quarter. Contents of the Bulletin are arranged in subject classified order, and an author index and an index of publishers' addresses are also included. The Library also publishes occasional bibliographies. These publications are available to other libraries at no charge. The Library describes its collection as general population, with a large collection of family planning materials. The collection contains 5000 books, 10,000 reprints, 100 government documents, and a number of census documents. There is a separate library for audio-visual materials. The Library acquires about 800 books and 600 reprints a year, and subscribes to 400 journals and newsletters and 10 newspapers. The first language of the collection is English, with some material available in French, German, Hindi, Spanish, and other languages. The Library will provide bibliographic and reference services to other libraries, organizations, and researchers, and has facilities for providing copies of material in its collection.

The IPPF Information Department regularly distributes materials prepared by IPPF to its affiliates around the world. These materials include pamphlets and brochures, and occasionally books, on family planning, as well as special news bulletins and a calendar of international meetings about population/family planning which is mailed with the Library Bulletin. These publications are available to persons outside IPPF.

PARLIAMENTARY QUESTIONS AND POPULATION REFERENCES INFORMATION SERVICE

233 Tottenham Court Road
London, W1P 9AE, England

The Parliamentary Questions and Population References (PQ-PR) information service was started in 1971 for organizations concerned with population growth, fertility control, and family planning education. It comprises complete coverage of parliamentary questions and answers, motions, bills and debates of relevance in the House of Commons and House of Lords. Subscribers receive a parliamentary news-sheet, Birth Control Campaign News, and population and birth control data for Britain (suitable for speeches, discussions, reports and articles). Up to six copies of most items are available without extra charge. The service costs $1,250.00 a year which includes fortnightly mailings by air while Parliament is in session. An abridged service at a cost of $375.00 a year is available for research students.

D. V. GLASS, Chairman

The Population Investigation Committee was established in 1936 as a separate entity advising the London School of Economics on population matters. The Committee publishes the journal Population Studies (English), which appears three times a year at a cost of approximately $12.50 per annum. This was the first English-language journal concerned exclusively with demographic research. It contains both technical contributions on methodology and substantive studies on such questions as population movements (including population history), the effectiveness of birth control programs, and the economic and social implications of demographic trends. The Committee also publishes occasional reports on such topics as Towards a Population Policy for the United Kingdom, 1970, a supplement to Population Studies, at a cost of approximately $2.50; and Demographic Estimation of Developing Societies, 1971, at a cost of approximately $9.50.

Kingdom. It is involved in mass communication/education in the area of public health, with a focus on the United Kingdom.

The Council publishes two journals, Health Education Journal (English), quarterly, and Health Information Digest (English), semi-annually; each costs about $2.40 per year.

The Library of the Health Education Council was also established in 1969 and is staffed by 2 full-time employees. The collection, written in English, consists of about 2100 books; the population-related portion of the collection is described as general in nature, with a focus on the United Kingdom. The Library provides bibliographic and reference services to other libraries, organizations, individual researchers and laymen, and will answer requests for information from libraries outside the United Kingdom. Facilities are available for providing copies of material in the Library's collection.

The Council has an information service which provides reference services for public health personnel in the United Kingdom on questions concerning health education and related subjects and provides publications and teaching aids for those involved in health education.

ABORTION LAW REFORM ASSOCIATION

22 Brewhouse Hill
Wheathampstead Nr. St. Albans, Hertfordshire, England

Diane MUNDAY, General Secretary

The Abortion Law Reform Association was established in 1936 and defines itself as a political organization because its earlier activities were directed toward effecting changes in Britain's abortion laws. It is currently concerned with maintaining the present law and keeping the public and doctors informed about its progress. The Association's publication, the ALRA Newsletter (English), merged in 1972 with two new Birth Control Campaign publications. These contain notes on recent political occurrences, published books, press reports, etc., and are available at a cost of $6.00 per year. The Association has also published a number of reports on the 1967 Abortion Act.

VIII. INFORMATION SERVICE

Please answer the following questions only as they pertain to your individual organization or regional office.

Some organizations provide bibliographic, abstracting, or information distribution services independently of their library, or in the absence of a library. It is these activities which we hope to cover in this section of the questionnaire, and for which we are using the term "Information Service." These information services tend to be highly individualized and reflect closely the aims and functions of the organization. We therefore limit our questions and ask that a brief description of the service be written when these questions do not suffice.
